

A satellite map showing a dense urban area surrounded by agricultural fields and green spaces. The town is centered in the image, with a mix of residential buildings, larger institutional structures like schools or hospitals, and industrial facilities. A major railway line cuts through the northern part of the town. The surrounding land is divided into various agricultural plots of different sizes and colors, indicating different crops or soil types. A network of roads and smaller paths connects the town to the surrounding rural areas.
